2024-03-19	1410	History	The 2010s	Social Media Boom, The	01	5	If the early promise of the internet was in connecting people across the globe, social media was the user-friendly fulfillment of that promise. Facebook and Twitter allowed people to connect with friends and find new ones with shared interests. Both became many peoples' main sources of news and information about the world. However, by the second half of the decade, cracks were beginning to show: the introduction of algorithms combined with deep partisan divisions created a version of reality online where engagement was fuelled more by moral outrage than a desire to connect.
